

Who Am I?

Banana:

I grow on a tree.

I am really a berry but you wouldn't think so by how I look.

I can be green or yellow.

Kiwifruit:

I grow on a vine.

I can have furry or smooth skin.

My flesh can be green or gold.

Peach:

I have furry skin.

I smell delicious!

I have a large stone inside.

Leek:

I am from the same family as onions.

I am green and white.

I am long and straight.

Peas:

I am green.

I am only small.

I grow in a pod.

Watermelon:

My flesh can be yellow, orange, white or red.

I am a fruit that grows on a vine and I am in the same family as pumpkins.

I am delicious served cold on a hot day.

Avocado:

In some places I am called an alligator pear.

You can use me instead of butter on your sandwich.

I grow on a tree.

Sweet potato or kumara:

I am a vegetable that comes in lots of colours including orange and purple.

I am a large root.

I am not a potato but some people call me a type of potato.

Pumpkin:

I can grow very, very large.

I am very popular at Halloween.

I am usually orange.

Potato:

I come in more than a thousand different types.

I am eaten all over the world.

I usually have white flesh but I can be blue!

Grapes:

I grow on vines.

I can be eaten raw or cooked.

I can be made into lots of things like jam, juice, vinegar, and oil.

Pineapple:

I am a fruit that forms from up to 200 flowers.

I have been named because I look like a pine cone.

I grow in tropical areas.

Blueberry:

I am a berry related to the sparkleberry, farkleberry, whortleberry and partridgeberry.

I grow on a bush.

When ripening, I change from green to pink and then to blue.

Zucchini:

I can grow up to a metre long!

I can be green, yellow or stripey.

I am sometimes called a courgette but in Australia I am called a...

Corn:

I grow as an ear.

I can be popped.

I am usually yellow

Carrots:

I am one of the crunchiest vegetables.

I am related to parsley

I am a root.

Lemon:

I am very sour.

I am yellow.

I grow on a tree.

Tomato:

I am really a fruit but get used as a vegetable.

I am easy to grow and lots of people will have a go at growing me in their backyard in summer.

You will find me in lots of different colours including red, orange, yellow and green.

Beetroot:

I grow in the ground.

I am usually red.

You can use me to colour pasta red.

Onion:

I grow in the ground.

I can be brown, white or red.

I might make you cry.